

COLUMBIA WINS THE CUP FASTER THAN SHAMROCK IN ANY KIND OF BREEZE

The Race Off Sandy Hook Today Was a Most Exciting Neck to Neck Event.

THE AMERICAN WINS ON TIME ALLOWANCE

Contest Was a Royal Struggle and the Result Leaves the Cup On This Side Of the Atlantic Ocean.

Highlands, N. J., Oct. 4.—The Shamrock crossed the line first. The Columbia won on the time allowance.

Highlands, N. J., Oct. 4.—With two clean cut victories to her credit, Columbia sailed forth from her moorings this morning to meet the English challenger for the deciding contest in the international cup series.

A light wind was howling along at an eleven knot clip. The sea was as smooth as glass and everything seemed conspiring to make it an ideal yachting day.

Near nine o'clock the wind increased in strength and was soon piling along from sixteen to eighteen knots. The sea soon became crested with whitecaps and the schooners running along the Jersey shore pounded badly. About nine o'clock the racers took the tow and started out for the starting point.

See Defeat for Shamrock:

With two out of three races to her credit and the proof she gave yesterday of absolute superiority in weather that precluded the possibility of flukes or luck of any character, all who saw the contest agree this morning that Columbia ought to take today's race and the cup with a fair margin of time to spare.

Sir Thomas Lipton himself, always optimistic and still believing that he has the best skipper and crew that ever stood on the deck of a yacht nevertheless concedes the undoubted superiority of Columbia over his beautiful vessel. He is perhaps the most disappointed man in America and does not attempt to conceal his thoughts.

"There is still a chance," he said early this morning "but it is only a chance. This race yesterday was decisive. If I should ever challenge again I would come to America, become a citizen, and then let Herreshoff design a yacht for me. The best boat that England could produce has been beaten in weather that I have always looked on as her greatest opportunity for victory. There is nothing more to be said."

Fifteen Miles Leeward

The regatta committee decided that the race be fifteen miles to leeward and return. The wind had lightened somewhat when the preparatory gun was fired. Both yachts kept well to windward of the line. It was evident that the rival skippers were going to fight it out to see who would get over last and be within the handicap time of two minutes. The last over the line to run before the wind has an advantage as the rear boat is always first to catch favorable puffs of wind.

Columbia Gains the Lead

It was a rattling battle to see which boat would secure the weather position. When the warning gun was fired Seymour laid his boat off a little and pulled out from under the Columbia's lee. The Shamrock then came up into the wind followed a few seconds later by the Columbia. When the starting gun was fired both yachts were way for the line, Columbia in the lead and Shamrock to windward, ten seconds ahead of the Shamrock. Shamrock Draws Ahead

Immediately after the start the race developed into a bluffing match in which the Shamrock had the upper hand. During the early stages she was running up her sailing on even terms with the Columbia. The American boat, however, soon drew away and at eleven sixteen led her by nearly a minute. The Shamrock then picked up a better breeze and passed the Columbia at eleven twenty-two. The Shamrock sped along like a fleet-footed ghost and at eleven thirty led by about one minute.

Shamrock Rounded First

The yachts made a pretty race of it. In the run before the wind and over the last half of the distance the Columbia more than held her own. The Shamrock rounded the mark at twelve forty-nine and the Columbia twelve forty-nine fifty.

The challenger crossed the Columbia's bow at one seven showing the Englishman still in the lead. An unfortunate bit of wind caught the Shamrock at one seventeen laying her off a bit and the Columbia profited by the loss.

At one thirty the yachts were on fairly even terms with the advantage if anything in favor of the Shamrock. At one forty Barr by sailing his boat along the edge of the wind gradually edged the Columbia out to windward of the Shamrock and took a very slight lead over the challenger.

Wind Fell Considerably

The Columbia then gained on the Shamrock but it was slow work in the light air. At two seven the Columbia led by a few seconds. The wind had fallen considerably. About three miles from the finish the Shamrock took a slight lead. The wind had almost disappeared and the race had practically resolved itself into a drifting match.

English Papers Lose Interest

London, Oct. 4.—For Britishers all real interest has now departed from the international yacht races. Their only desire is to get the matter settled.

"If we are to be thrashed again," says the Daily Chronicle, "we had rather take our gruel at once with all the good humor at our command."

In short, the editorials published this morning do not make the slightest attempt to explain the defeat. They frankly admit that the Shamrock II was beaten in her own weather and under conditions most favorable to her, and they congratulate America upon being possessed of the better boat.

"As a matter of fact," remarks the Daily Graphic, "on none of the former occasions when the boats have met has the Shamrock II ever been so far in front of the Columbia as to have the time allowance in hand."

The Daily Mail says: "The Columbia has demonstrated her superiority on all points of sailing."

The Standard says: "Apparently there was nothing to choose between the contending captains and men in point of judgment and smartness. Therefore the result was decided solely by the intrinsic capabilities of the yachts. The Shamrock is a very fine boat, but not quite enough for the defender. Yet the interval between them was not great enough for despair."

Three Generations Represented.

Statues of three generations of Dumas will soon decorate the Place Malesherbes, at Paris. That of the writer of "Les Trois Mousquetaires" is already in place; the statue of the son and playwright of Saint-Marceaux will follow, and then the turn comes to the grandfather, General Dumas, by Moncel. The general is leading a charge with raised sword and bare head.

Warehouses are destroyed

Establishment of A. S. Leach & Co. of Philadelphia burned.

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—Leach's storage warehouse at Fifteenth street and Columbia avenue, owned by A. S. Leach & Co., one of the largest establishments of the city, were completely destroyed by the fire which started from an unknown cause in the carpet-cleaning department on the second floor of a six-story building, and the structure was soon a mass of flames. Nothing was saved. A three-story building adjoining was also destroyed and falling walls demolished the Rogers' music store.

Mr. Leach says the loss on his two buildings is $40,000, and that the household goods stored in them were worth from $250,000 to $500,000. Rogers' loss is about $10,000. Surrounding buildings were damaged to the extent of a few thousand dollars. The loss is only partly covered by insurance.

San Francisco, Oct. 4.—The third day of the Protestant Episcopal convention was devoted to missionary work, both houses meeting in joint session to discuss the subject. Trinity church was crowded to hear the discussions, it being the only opportunity afforded the public to hear the bishops discuss church affairs at a convention.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 4.—The memorial of the diocese of Milwaukee, asking for a change of name of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States to the American Catholic Church of the United States, was presented today in the convention of the church named, and was supplemented by a memorial of a similar import presented by the Rev. P. H. Hickman of Colorado. Both reports were referred to the committee on the Book of Common Prayer, without discussion, but in private the memorials are favorably received. Although coming from an advanced diocese, the proposition is not looked upon with disfavor by other parties. The sessions of the convention were devoted strictly to business. After the announcement of the standing committees, discussion on the proposed amendments to the constitution was begun and continued with much earnestness until evening. The bishops adopted a report on marginal readings. The report has been made by a committee that has been laboring for six years and has put into Holy Scripture all of the various readings of disputed passages. The resolution gives authority to the committee to publish its work and for ministers to read the same in the lessons at morning and evening prayer. The deputies have still to act. Bishop Edsall, formerly of Chicago, was transferred from North Dakota, and is now a Bishop of Minnesota, to succeed the late Bishop Whipple. An invitation was extended to the Russian Bishop of Alaska, resident in San Francisco, to sit with the American Bishops. He is in Alaska, however, and will hardly accept the invitation except by letter. It was resolved to draw up suitable resolutions regarding the death of President McKinley, which shall be finally accepted by a rising vote.

War on bucket shops.

Grain Men's Convention Would Tax Evil Out of Existence.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 4.—The convention of the National Grain Dealers' association adjourned after re-electing its old officers, selecting Memphis, Tenn., as the seat of the next convention and adopting resolutions memorializing congress to amend the interstate commerce law, condemning bucket-shops, and recommending the reorganization of the government crop service. The resolutions denounce the so-called dealings in bucket-shops as a "national mode of gambling" and a constant menace to the grain trade and to values, working great injustice to producers. Congress is appealed to to tax the bucket-shop out of existence. The officers elected are: President, Benjamin A. Lockwood, Des Moines, Ia.; first vice president, Theodore P. Baxter, Taylorville, Ind.; second vice president, H. S. Grimes, Portsmouth, O.; Secretary Charles Clark was unanimously re-elected. He immediately resigned because his work as editor of the Grain Dealers' Journal required all his time. G. A. Stebbins of Red Oak, Ia., was then elected to the place.

Outlook for winter feed good; crops better than expected

The State Crop Report for October Shows a Much Better Condition—Corn Gains 4 Points—The Only Falling Off Was in Potatoes.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—Secretary John M. True of the state board of agriculture has issued his state crop report for the month ending Oct. 1. The report on the whole shows a much better condition of growing and harvested crops than former reports. It says:

"The reports of correspondents for Oct. 1 are of special interest, as giving the estimates of the principal farm crops of the state, either from results of threshed grain or from a point of development of unharvested crops that enables a very close estimate to be made."

Only Potatoes Show a Loss

In the seventeen counties in the southern part of the state classified in our last report as the "drought stricken section," corn has advanced from 58 to 62 per cent, a gain of four points, and tobacco from 52 per cent to 72 per cent, while the reports of threshed grain show better yields than were anticipated. The only crop that shows a loss during the last two months is potatoes. This crop is not to be a full one in any general part of the state. Even in those sections where rain has been sufficient during the entire season the yield is not nearly up to early indications.

The whole state with a careful consideration of the importance of the crop in the various sections, we are compelled to report a falling off of six points since August 1, our estimate then being 78 per cent, against 72 per cent, now.

It may be of interest to state in this connection that from the statements of crops raised, given in reports of the secretary of state for several years past, the average yield of potatoes in the state is given as some eighty bushels per acre. It is doubted whether the present crop will fall below these figures.

Previous estimates of small grain crops are amply sustained by reports of bushels threshed, and show these crops to be well up among yields of former years.

Less Winter Wheat

The reports show an inclination to sow less winter wheat than in the past year, spring wheat new yielding nearly as heavily as winter wheat, and being less subject to chances of loss. The corn crop has been more generally secured, with reference to the feeding value of the roughage than usual, and the absence of frost has allowed it to be cut while in good form.

The prospects for winter feed are not so gloomy as they were at the time of last report; and while large numbers of young cattle have been sold at low figures, we are of the opinion that there is ample feed in the state to winter the farm stock now in the hands of the farmers.

As a whole the farmers of Wisconsin have little reason for discouragement at the results of their work in 1901; and lessons may be learned from peculiar conditions existing this year, suggestive of better culture and management, that may largely compensate for losses sustained.

Below is given the aggregate of estimates received from correspondents, respecting the various crops:

Yield per acre, spring wheat, 16 bu.; winter wheat, 18 1/2 bu.; rye, 15 bu.; barley, 30 bu.; oats, 34 bu.; clover hay, 1 1/2 tons; timothy hay, 1 ton.

Estimated percentage of full crop: Corn, 70 per cent; potatoes, 72 per cent; tobacco, 75 per cent; buckwheat, 70 per cent; beans, 60 per cent; apples, 20 per cent.

Leaf Tobacco Notes.

This year's tobacco crop suffered but comparatively little from frost. Whatever leaf was left standing in the fields was of course damaged beyond all hope on Wednesday night but the heavy frosts of this week found but little of the tobacco unharvested. The frosts of last week were not heavy enough to do much damage except in individual instances and tobacco growers are confident that at least 60 per cent of a crop will be realized.

There has been some talk that the small crop would make work in the warehouses light this coming winter and spring and that this would mean an increase of several girls in the market. Tobacco men do not anticipate any such occurrence and think there will be work enough for all the help they can secure in the city. This last year the work in the warehouses was so heavy that it was impossible to get help enough and much of the help was imported. The indications are that all the local people who rely on the warehouse season for work will be able to find the usual amount of employment.

The reports of country buying of the 1901 crop continue to tell that no little of it is being done. Most of the crops that have been bought are those of upland districts, the valley fields not having been gone after. All indications are that the price now being offered, ten cents, will be maintained, and perhaps increased, when the big buyers enter the field. Speaking of the buying of the growing crop in the field, "Those farmers that are selling their crops in this manner are acting foolishly. If buyers are so anxious to have the crop assured even before it is harvested there must be some gain in it for them. Why should not the farmer wait and get this gain for himself?"

"If, however, the crop turns out poor the contractor will not take it and so the farmer is left again. It's a one-sided game all-around, with the farmer at the short end of the horn."

An agent of the American Tobacco company has been at Viroqua all summer," said Colonel E. M. Rogers in the lobby of the Hotel Pfister yesterday to a Sentinel reporter. "The company has purchased ten acres of land adjoining the City of Viroqua and intends to make an interesting experiment in tobacco raising next season as an object lesson to the farmers of that section of the state. The land purchased is protected on the north and west by a heavy growth of timber.

It is proposed to try the experiment of growing tobacco under cover in this state. Heavy stakes, seven feet high will be planted at convenient distances apart, with lighter stakes intervening; wires are to be stretched across the top of the stakes and upon the wires will be laid thin sheeting. The sheeting will be high enough to permit of the cultivation of the tobacco plant. The claim is made that the tobacco grown in the shade will have a thinner leaf, which may be used for wrappers.

"The experiment has been tried on a small scale in Vermont and the tobacco thus grown has been sold for $1.50 a pound. The Wisconsin tobacco sells at prices ranging from 10 to 12 cents a pound and if the experiment of the American tobacco company proves successful it will be a good thing for Wisconsin farmers."

While so much has been published about growing tobacco under canvas to imitate the imported wrapper, it is proper to consider the following observations of an Eastern correspondent:

How this shade-grown tobacco will come out is the all-important question. The growers who have tried the experiment, and it was quite a costly experiment, say they are trusting to luck. It is said that this shade-grown tobacco shows no luster whatever. All green things growing that get sweet and ripe get it from the sun and in tropical countries tobacco is grown in the open where it gets the most sunlight. That is why it is glossy and delicately strong. The shade grown Connecticut Sumatra is sound and free from insect holes, for the insect pests could not get at it, but is it such leaf as the trade wants? Those patches which were grown under shade had a great deal of moisture. Indeed even late in the month the ground was muddy and the moss which grew at the edges was strong and of a brilliant green. One farmer in Connecticut has grown a crop in a field which he surrounded with mosquito netting. He left the top open to the sun. The netting kept out the insects and the sunlight did a full day's work on his crop every day it didn't rain. This crop seems to promise better than those crops which were grown under tents, for the leaf is glossier and apparently stronger. But the whole experiment of growing Sumatra under shade in Connecticut is still to receive the one test by which it is to stand or fall—competition in the open market with the real sure enough Sumatra.

COOKSVILLE OLD SETTLERS' REUNION

September 26 Was a Red Letter Day in the History of the Little Rock County Town.

One of the red letter days in the history of Cooksville, Rock county, occurred on the occasion of the Old Settlers' Reunion, Sept. 26, 1901. Its first inception sprang from the neighborly talk of two or three, but grew into large proportions as it became circulated abroad.

Thus on the above date, there assembled a goodly number of the present and former residents of this pretty rural hamlet, to celebrate the interesting event. They came from far and near. From adjoining towns and cities, even neighboring states contributing a small contingent, until their ranks swelled to 115 smiling, eager faces.

Many who were born in the little town came gladly, longing to tread this native heath once more.

The day proved ideal and at an early hour the company began to assemble. The Masonic hall, kindly donated for the occasion, proved a commodious apartment handsomely carpeted and well lighted.

The resident ladies had arranged draperies, pictures, and potted plants most effectively. At the west end of the room were several tables, decorated with choice flowers and fruits, and loaded with the most delicate achievements of the culinary art.

A spirit of genial and delightful hospitality reigned, creating a home-like atmosphere, its effect making all present seem like one family. Grave men and stately women, who had not met for years, and with the almond blossom white upon their hair addressed each other as Frank and Kate and Belle and Joe, with charming friendliness. Sometimes in these greetings a tremble of the lip or the moisture of an eye proved that smiles and tears were very near akin.

After the banquet there ensued a "feast of reason," and if not the traditional flow of soul, at least a flood of memories. Gideon E. Newman was chosen chairman by acclamation. He came here in the early forties and was one of the boys of the early sixties, who followed "Old Glory" for three long years over many a bloody field.

The first speaker called for was B. S. Hoxie, long a prominent citizen of Cooksville, as he is now of Evansville where his home is located. He responded, giving many pleasing reminiscences and calling attention to the numerous inventions and conveniences of the present day as compared with the past.

T. A. Hoxie, formerly of the Evansville Review related interesting historical facts and anecdotes of the early days.

Joseph K. Tarter, one of Cooksville's honored residents for over half a century, read an original paper, published in the Badger several years ago, but so replete with incidents and information that it was listened to with marked attention.

Will Gillies responded with two or three humorous stories.

Mrs. V. H. Campbell was repeatedly called for and no one who listened could help being thrilled to more earnest endeavor by her impassioned exhortations to higher ideals, and nobler living.

Mrs. Helen T. Richardson contributed a song, rendered so pleasingly, that it proved her true descendant of her nightingale mother, who for years was the "sweet singer" of Wisconsin.

It was moved to form the meeting into a permanent organization. A committee of five was appointed by the chair to draft resolutions and report at once. This was complied with and the society will henceforth be known as the Old Settlers' Reunion or Cooksville. The following officers were elected:

Mr. Everett Van Patten, president. Mr. J. K. Tarter, vice-president. Mrs. E. Wells Love, secretary.

M. Avote of thanks, with three cheers and a tiger, were given to Mrs. Bell Lee and Mrs. E. W. Love as first promoters of the enterprise. And thanks were also due to Messdames Belle Stebbins, Rosette Johnson, Lizzie Denison, Hattie T. Tarter, and many others who gave their best of time and labor to insure its success.

After singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "Nearer My God to Thee," the society adjourned to September, 1902, the exact day to be decided later.

The golden sunset had merged into purple twilight ere the last goodbye was spoken. As the different groups wended their way over the hills, across the fields or through quiet streets to the "Ingle-nook," but one hope and one verdict, found voice: That the future would bring many such reunions, and each and all might participate in the good time.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

The far-famed success, "The Girl From Paris" which has enjoyed such long runs in London and in New York will receive its first presentation here Saturday, October 5. Probably the first real vaudeville company which has ever appeared in our city, will be seen on the occasion of the opening of Fred Felton's high class vaudeville next Monday night at the Myers Grand. This company consists of sixteen people who have been most carefully selected by Mr. Felton from a very extensive list and are chosen because of their undoubted worth. The performance consists of farces, sketches, songs, sentimental and humorous, dances, impersonations and in fact a pot pourri of specialties that is appealing to all classes of amusement lovers. This company will remain for three nights and one matinee and will play at popular prices.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

WARNING GIVEN BY SCHLEY

Sampson Notified Spanish Might Try to Escape.

JULY 2 IS THE DATE GIVEN.

Lieutenant Doyle, of the Brooklyn is an Important Witness Before Inquiry Board—Capt. Parker Says He Wants a Complete Investigation.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Lieutenant Doyle, formerly of Admiral Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn was a prominent witness before the Schley court of inquiry continuing his testimony. The chief point elucidated from him was his belief that Admiral Schley had notified Admiral Sampson on July 2, the day before the battle of Santiago, that smoke was coming from Santiago harbor. The point sought to be established was that this smoke came from the Spanish fleet and forecasted an attempt upon its part to escape. Captain William C. Dawson, signal officer on board the battleship Indiana during the naval engagement off Santiago, gave an account from recollection of the behavior of the various ships of the American fleet during that battle. He said the Brooklyn had gone about 2,000 yards to the southward before joining in the pursuit of Cervera's ships. Lieutenant Charles W. Dyson of the bureau of steam engineering of the navy department was introduced to testify concerning the coal supply of the flying squadron, but the court adjourned for the day before he could be heard to any extent.

Statement by Sigbee. Before Lieutenant Doyle was recalled Captain Sigbee asked permission to make a statement. He said he had made another search last night for the dispatch from the navy department under the terms of which he sought to connect with the flying squadron off Santiago, and that he had found a private letter which he had written at the time in which he had said: "Until we sighted the vessels on the 29th we knew nothing positive as to their whereabouts. Lieutenant Doyle was examined by Mr. Rayner, who asked him: "What do you know from your own observation in reference to the strength of the shore batteries and the guns? I want the result of your observation at Santiago acquired by you at any time, without going into any general or specific details as to the bombardments."

Schley Cool Under Fire. Replying, Lieutenant Doyle said that at the bombardment June 6 the Zocopa battery had replied at first very spiritedly, but that it soon "went out of business." After the ships withdrew the enemy had again manned their guns and then shot at the ships. On the occasion of the second bombardment they did not remain so long. Mr. Rayner then asked Lieutenant Doyle how often he had seen Commodore Schley under fire during the Santiago campaign.

"Every time we were under fire," he replied, "during those bombardments and in the battle of July 3."

"What was his conduct? I refer you to the first specification of the precept. 'His conduct in connection with the events of the Santiago campaign,' and what was his conduct and bearing at any time, either during the bombardments or during the battle of July 3, when his ship was under fire?"

"I did not have an opportunity, as the commodore was always near about the conning tower, to observe his conduct during the battle, but immediately previous and after I did have an opportunity to do so. He always struck me as being just about as well possessed as it was possible for anybody to be under these circumstances."

Mr. Rayner then asked the witness whether on July 2, 1898, he had observed smoke coming from Santiago harbor over Zocopa Hill. Captain Lemley objected, and Mr. Rayner said his purpose was to prove that it was believed at that time the Spaniards were preparing to withdraw from the harbor, and that Commodore Schley had communicated the facts to the squadron.

To Whom the Investigation. Captain Lemley and Mr. Rayner contended the certain effect of such questions would be to open the gates for interminable inquiry, and that if one side should enter upon such questions the other must also be allowed to do so. They did not object except for the reason of the time involved.

Captain Parker announced his willingness to "open the door wide." He wanted the entire matter investigated, and would have the searchlight turned upon every individual from the commander in chief to the lowest officer under him. Mr. Rayner was then permitted to ask his question, which he did in the following words:

"Was the smoke observed on July 2 by Commodore Schley communicated to the squadron?"

"Smoke was observed rising in the harbor on July 2," was the reply, "and my impression now is and always has been since that night that that information was conveyed to the commander in chief."

Lieutenant Dyson was called to present a tabulated statement showing the amount of coal on board the vessels of the flying squadron from May 13 to June 1, 1898, as compiled from the steam log books of the various vessels.

Sampson in a Bad Light.

Admiral Schley's counsel succeeded in dragging Admiral Sampson's name into the hearing and placed it in what they consider a disadvantageous light. They laid the foundation to establish that Schley warned Sampson the night before the battle of Santiago that there were suspicious movements in the vicinity of the Spanish fleet. The inference left was that although Schley did his duty and warned Sampson, the latter sailed away the following morning and was absent when Cervera's fleet tried to escape a few hours later.

Lieutenant James G. Doyle, divisional officer on the Brooklyn, was on the stand when this development appeared. He said that Schley saw smoke in the harbor the night of July 2 and that he believed the commodore notified the commander in chief, Admiral Sampson. The Schley side is elated over the admission of this evidence, which the attorneys assert shows that Schley performed his duty, while Sampson left his post notwithstanding reports of suspicious movements by the enemy.

Some surprise was felt that the court permitted Doyle to give this testimony, as yesterday Admiral Dewey announced that nothing would be admitted pertaining to the blockade after Sampson arrived at Santiago. Attorney Rayner, however, insisted that evidence concerning Schley's communications with Sampson came within the purview of the precept questioning Schley's conduct during the Santiago campaign, and finally objection was withdrawn on condition that the examination did not concern other vessels.

Lieutenant Doyle said the officers of the Brooklyn observed smoke in Santiago harbor the evening of July 2.

Like McKinley Case.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—What is known as the "McKinley case" in St. Elizabeth's hospital—a patient suffering from gunshot wounds identical with those inflicted upon the late President McKinley, is attracting attention among surgeons. The case is that of Peter Arp, a laborer, 41 years of age, who on Sept. 21 attempted to commit suicide because he was tired of living, according to the hospital report. He shot himself through the left lung and both walls of his stomach.

Instead of closing the wounds made by the operation, as was done in the president's case, the surgeons left them open to prevent the formation of gangrene or pus. The physicians say the man is recovering.

May Open a Big Gas Belt.

Kendallville, Ind., Oct. 4.—While putting down a well on the farm of John Carpenter, north of here, workmen discovered a flow of natural gas. When down about 600 feet in the rock a low rumbling noise was heard and the machinery was blown from the ground. When ignited the gas made a flame about fifty feet high. Speculators of all stripes are now on the ground trying to make leases for the land. Geologists are making surveys and say the prospects are bright for the opening of a new belt similar to the Indiana gas belt, which is about sixty miles south. The news has created a great stir in this district.
